Great and I'll check the drive tomorrow.

Great, thanks – we're working on this with the agents and will circle back when we have more info. Thanks again.

I just checked with [REDACTED] and he said that there was not very much on the drive. Can you check with the agents and find out what they put on the drive? If they don't know, I'll check the drive when I'm back in the office tomorrow. And you can look at the NP folders.

Following up on the Epstein materials, it seems to us like 20,000 documents is exceedingly low given the volume of devices we seized. Can you please tell us how many source devices those documents are from, so we can cross-reference? The seizure records appear to reflect that there were approximately 38 computers and/or electronic storage devices seized along with an additional approximately 55 CDs—see the attached seizure report. I just can't imagine that would only result in 20,000 documents. Please advise?

thanks,

About 20K but a lot are non-user files, like adobe instructions.

I know that you had dealt directly with Epstein's attorneys regarding search terms, etc., so we haven't had visibility on that, but could you please let us know the current status, and when you expect we'll be able to get access to the materials?
